“I approach the practice of law as both a legal counselor and strategic business advisor, helping clients navigate complex transactions, manage risk, and make informed decisions that advance their commercial objectives and position them for long-term success.”

Reginald Guy II is an accomplished corporate and transactional attorney with extensive experience advising businesses, executives, investors, and entrepreneurs on complex legal, commercial, and strategic matters. Drawing on his extensive experience in both private practice and corporate legal leadership, Reginald brings a business-minded, solutions-oriented approach to legal counseling. He serves as a trusted strategic advisor, helping clients navigate sophisticated transactions, manage risk, capitalize on business opportunities, and make informed decisions that advance their immediate objectives and long-term growth.

Reginald's practice focuses on mergers and acquisitions, private equity, venture capital, corporate governance, complex commercial agreements, strategic partnerships, technology transactions, data privacy, and general corporate counseling. He has represented established corporations, private equity sponsors, investors, and emerging businesses in multimillion-dollar acquisitions, divestitures, investments, and other significant commercial transactions. Reginald works closely with business owners, executive leadership, boards of directors, and in-house legal teams to structure and execute transactions, address operational challenges, and develop practical legal strategies aligned with broader business objectives.

Prior to joining Howard & Howard, Reginald served as Deputy General Counsel and Corporate Counsel, advising senior leadership on strategic business initiatives, commercial transactions, regulatory compliance, corporate governance, and enterprise risk management. His background also includes serving as a partner in private practice and practicing at nationally recognized law firms, where he counseled clients on sophisticated corporate transactions and business matters. This combination of in-house and private practice experience enables Reginald to approach legal issues with a comprehensive understanding of both the legal complexities and commercial considerations that influence business decisions.
